

My Husband Died Yesterday

A relative had telephoned Kensico to send a representative. The widow received him. "My husband died yesterday," she murmured, "and we have no family burial place."

What meaning, what dread, what baffled hopelessness is left in those words: "We have no family burial place." Her husband should have seen to that before—in the fullness of life.

When a man has made up his mind to choose a family burial place he must consider Permanence, Beauty and Cost. The facts governing these things are covered in a booklet called "Judging a Burial Park." Kensico will send this booklet to any interested man or woman—and who is not vitally interested?

AMERICA DEMANDS BRITISH RETRACT

Will Not Reopen Newcastle Consulate Until Charges Are Withdrawn.

PUBLIC ACTION SOUGHT

Washington Notifies London That Three Reports Uphold Consular Officers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The United States Government has decided not to reopen the American consulate at Newcastle, England, until the British Government has unconditionally withdrawn the charges it made against Consul Slater and Vice-Consul Brooks, and publicly exonerated the two officials.

The British Foreign Office has been made aware of this after investigations disclosed no foundation to support the charges which led the British authorities in August to cancel the exequaturs of Slater and Brooks.

Action of the British Government in canceling the exequaturs was followed by the closing of the consulate, and the Washington Government in charges that Slater and Brooks improperly used their official positions in Newcastle, in discrimination of British shipping interests and to the advantage of American steamship lines, agreed that no substantiation could be obtained.

On the basis of the three reports, the British Government has been informed that the American consulate at Newcastle will remain closed until the charges against Slater and Brooks have been retracted.

Wholly aside from the question of the charges brought against Slater and Brooks, it is possible they will not be reassigned to the Newcastle consulate when that office is reopened. Names of Consuls for any post are presented to the Government to which they are to be accredited and appointments are made only where such Governments indicate that they are satisfactory. It is also recognized here that the controversy might leave a feeling of hostility toward the two men.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The idea is advanced here that the British charges against Fred C. Slater would be withdrawn, and that the United States would make concessions by appointing other consular officials to replace Consul Slater and Vice-Consul Russell M. Brooks.

MUSSOLINI'S POLICY IS 'DIGNIFIED EXPANSION'

Foreign Program to Look Out for Emigrants.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Premier Mussolini further defined the policy he proposed to pursue in the course of an interview to-day with the Times correspondent at Rome.

"The revolution is a lawful one since it has succeeded without bloodshed in changing the existing regime, and without disarrangement of public services or the destruction of private property," declared the new leader as he prepared to take up his duties at the head of the Interior and Foreign departments, in addition to that of the Premiership.

"We shall be friends to those who treat us as friends," continued the Premier.

In his policy on foreign affairs, he said he believed it would be possible to obtain agreements and understandings, even with the Jugo-Slavs, as it was imperative to form bonds of friendship, particularly with nations possessing raw materials.

Signor Mussolini said it would be his purpose to pursue a policy of "dignity, expansion and equilibrium." To this end he would seek fresh lands for emigration, particularly in South America and Australia. He hoped to be able also to send Italian workmen to assist in rebuilding Smyrna, as he was fully alive to the possibility of Italian emigration to Asia Minor.

Mussolini smiles rarely, speaks slowly, says little, but speaks without hesitation on anything which arouses his interest, and looks far younger than his years. He answers exactly the description of him given by an American: "A Napoleon turned pugilist."

'Youth of Italy With You,' D'Annunzio to Mussolini

ROME, Oct. 31.—D'Annunzio from his sick bed near Lake Garda, has sent the following message to Benito Mussolini: "I am persuaded that the youth of Italy will to-day follow your leadership with a purified heart. All that is best and truest must be knit together to launch Italy toward the goal that the eternal fates have marked out for her. Victory lies in mainly patience, not in nervous impatience. Once more the King shows himself Italy's most devoted and willing soldier. May he be spared to the nation. Italy has to-day pulled the wool from her eyes. She must not be blinded again."

MUSSOLINI IN YOUTH HAD STORMY CAREER

Chased Into Switzerland and Then Expelled for Writings.

GENEVA, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Benito Mussolini spent a few exciting years in Switzerland during his youth. He was pursued over the frontier at Chassas by Italian gendarmes who had a warrant for his arrest, but won his race by a hundred yards and the Swiss customs officers refused to surrender him.

Mussolini was then about 20 years of age. penniless he crossed the St. Gothard Pass on foot, and upon his arrival in Luzerne was arrested as a vagabond. Political friends came to his aid. Later he entered the University of Lausanne, but as he was a revolutionary socialist and wrote many fiery articles for the Swiss and Italian Socialist press, he was finally expelled after several police warnings.

Mussolini then went to Trent, in the old Austrian Tyrol, whence he was also expelled in 1911. Upon the declaration of a general amnesty he went to Milan, where he founded the newspaper Popolo Italiano.

He aroused the hatred of the Socialists in the conduct of his paper by his campaign in favor of Italy's entrance into the world war on the side of the Entente, and later fought with the Italian forces and was severely wounded.

MUSSOLINI CONFIDENT OF AMERICAN SUPPORT

Message to Hughes Bespeaks Cordial Relations.

ROME, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Premier Mussolini has sent the following message to Secretary of State Hughes at Washington:

"In assuming the task of Government at the request of his Majesty the King I am addressing to your Excellency my most cordial good wishes, and I venture to express my confidence in the friendly, economic and spiritual collaboration of our two countries. Such collaboration will be rendered all the more agreeable by the fact that the Italian people look to the noble American nation with full confidence that it will understand and estimate the value of the efforts accomplished by the Italian nation for the realization of a common victory."

PARIS, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—Count Sforza has telegraphed his resignation as Italian Ambassador at Paris to Premier Mussolini. He explains that in his view the new Government should have in such posts men in thorough accord with its policies.

U. S. NOT TO ENTER PARLEY.

America to Send Only Observers to Lausanne.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—The American Government, in notes delivered today to the British, French and Italian embassies here, formally declined to participate in the Near East peace conference. Later, the State Department made public this Government's position as outlined in the "aide memoire" transmitted yesterday to the three governments concerned through the American Embassies at London, Paris and Rome, and which was published yesterday in dispatches from Paris.

The formal replies, like the formal invitations, were directly worded and explained that the United States would send only observers to the Lausanne meeting, adding that the conference was primarily a peace conference to end a war in which the United States was not a belligerent.

MILLION SEE MARCH OF THE FASCISTI

and several Fascisti Deputies. He walked with a firm step the entire four miles from Borghese Park, where the procession began, to the disbanding point at the railroad station.

A feature of the day was the absence of speeches, the Fascisti leaders having decided, as one of them put it, that they are men of action, not words.

The crush around the tomb of the unknown soldier was so great that many women and some soldiers fainted. They were attended promptly by Fascisti ambulances.

Fully a million people lined the concourse from Borghese Park to the station, or nearly twice the population of Rome, many of them coming from Venice and others from Sicily. Airplanes hovered overhead most of the day, dropping Fascisti manifestoes. Frequently the crowds were stampeded in efforts to pick up the pamphlets.

For six solid hours the Fascisti walked through the Eternal City, many of those who marched having walked since last night, reaching the walls of the city just in time to fall in line when the procession started. Nearly 25,000 Fascisti came from Tuscany alone.

With miles of prison files and armed and automatically fell into the places assigned to them—dark visaged youths, with determined faces, upon which shone the light of victory, all wearing the ubiquitous black shirt. But the rest of their equipment varied from skull caps to soft felt hats and steel pumps. They were armed with riding crops and bludgeons, one man from Ancona swinging a baseball bat.

The Roman contingent led the way along the Piazza della Repubblica, then marched down the Corso Umberto, Rome's main street, lined with flags, and every window filled with Romans cheering, the youth never looking to the right or left, and acknowledging the acclamations and cheers only by singing Fascisti marching songs. Thus they reached the monument of Victor Emmanuel and the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Homage to Unknown Soldier. Then two men from each contingent, one bearing a huge palm, the other a bouquet of flowers, ascended the steps leading to the tomb and deposited them upon it until it was lost to sight beneath the mass of bloom. The first wreath placed on the tomb was carried by a veteran Garibaldini, nearly a hundred years of age, who was assisted up the steps by two youths whose combined ages totalled less than half his own. On departing from the tomb the Fascist proceeded at double quick to the Quirinal, where the King appeared on the balcony at 2:30 o'clock. He stood at salute. As each contingent arrived the flag was dipped, as before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The King was accorded a great ovation.

Clashes occurred in several parts of the city between groups of Fascisti and isolated bands of Communists. Early to-night the casualties were placed at eight killed and about twenty-five wounded. One fight, in which several shots were exchanged, occurred near the Vatican wall, but no damage was reported.

The first official act of Premier Mussolini upon assuming power was to send a circular to all the prefects throughout Italy saying:

"Called by the confidence of the King

I assume to-day direction of the Government of the country. I exact that all officials, from the highest to the lowest, perform their duties with intelligence and absolute abnegation for the supreme interest of the country. I myself will give the example."

Premier Mussolini on reaching his office at 8 o'clock this morning called each of the members of his Cabinet by telephone in order to ascertain whether they were at their posts on time. "Whoever neglects his duty shows himself unworthy of his post and must be replaced," he announced.

The Premier made an early report to King Victor Emmanuel of the entire situation throughout Italy and directed that the entire Cabinet be ready to take the oath of loyalty in the presence of the King.

"Everybody must wear a frock coat and top hat," the Premier told each Minister. Turning to his secretary he asked to be supplied himself with these articles of apparel.

"I never have possessed either one," he remarked. Half an hour later he was trying on various sizes of ready-made frock coats, and shortly afterwards he was fully equipped to meet the King formally.

King Victor Emmanuel received the Cabinet members in a cordial, earnest way, shaking hands with each Minister. Premier Mussolini was the first to take the oath of office. He stood rigidly at attention before the King, took a step forward and raising his extended right arm, as though giving the Fascisti salute, said in a deep, fervent voice: "Giuro" (I swear it).

Staging A Come-back At Gedney

He was Tired and Worn Out. In the vernacular, he was Slipping. He was Restive by day and Restless by night. His spirit was burning low in the Socket. The Gusto of Life had gone out of him. He was what you call All In. Then he came to Gedney, and started to sleep the face off the clock and to eat the type off the bill of fare! In a week he was Rehabilitated and Standing on His Toes. And one morning he disappeared as suddenly as he came. He couldn't stand it any longer. The Elixir of Gedney was too strong for him. He simply had to go back and Buck the Line!
